

Residents Gather for Grand Rounds

The biannual advanced education grand rounds are an opportunity for collaboration among residents in the various programs at LSUSD. Promoting interdisciplinary cooperation, grand rounds allow residents to recognize and appreciate challenges encountered by clinicians in the various specialty and residency programs.

The spring 2014 program, held on Friday, March 21, featured two guest speakers. Kenneth E. Rhea, MD, medical risk management consultant for LAMMICO, discussed "Mobile Medical Communications: Managing and Using Your Mobile Devices." Dale Ehrlich, DDS, chairman of the LSUSD Department of Comprehensive Dentistry and

Dr. Eric Hovland presents appreciation award to LAMMICO's Kristen Quigley

Biomaterials, spoke on "Behavioral Management for Orofacial Pain."

Presentations of challenging clinical cases by residents in each of the seven advanced education programs filled the remainder of the day. Following each presentation, a resident panel consisting of Drs.

Theodoros Katsaros, Danny Gano, Jeremy Manuele, Ahmed Zahar, Psalmer Richmond, Cameron Cavola, and Jennifer Flanagan, addressed questions to the speakers.

In addition, Dr. Eric Hovland, director of advanced education, presented an award of appreciation to Kristen Quigley, LAMMICO customer relations specialist, in recognition of the company's generous support of advanced education grand rounds. LAMMICO is a mutual insurance company providing medical professional liability products to health care providers and facilities.

8th Annual Clayshoot a Success

The 2014 Clay Pigeon Shoot, held at Southern Shooting Center in Thibodaux earlier this year, raised nearly $7,000 for the LSUSD Student Education Fund and the Student Government Association (SGA). SGA officers Colten Ducote and Matthew George organized the event. The overall high shooter was Dr. Thomas Nash. His team, which included Dr. Philip Gastinel, Paul Gastinel and Bert Wintz, also came in first. The overall female shooter was Ms. Lisette Wands.
